

CODE FOR NEPAL

Code for Nepal is an organization dedicated to improving the lives of Nepalese in several ways:

1. Improving digital literacy
2. Building applications
3. Increasing access to data and information

Code for Nepal believes that it is necessary to improve digital literacy as the modern world relies on computers and the internet to do daily tasks such as searching for information, finding jobs, and community communications. Therefore, improving digital literacy of citizens means improving their quality of their lives.

Code for Nepal's most well-known product is NepalMap, a website where people can find various data regarding Nepal such as demographics, education level, and household health.

Code for Nepal has also organized rescue relief in times of disaster such as floods or earthquakes. By translating documents and information and uploading them onto the web, it spreads information such as which regions are hit the hardest, missing or injured people, and places where relief stations are located.

Code for Nepal hopes you too, will assist in improving the lives of Nepalese!
